

Whenever we place a post it is created at the Post Center aligning to Grid Point

A horizontal red line segment is drawn between two large, hand-drawn black brackets. The line is slightly curved, rising from left to right. The text "Whenever we place a post it is created at the Post Center aligning to Grid Point" is centered above the line.

.

At ends we want the Column web to match the grid point

A horizontal red line segment is drawn between two large, hand-drawn black brackets. At each end of the line, where it meets the bracket, there are two small red dots. The text "At ends we want the Column web to match the grid point" is centered above the line.

So After Placing The column, we adjust the point towards the line and then move the column